Children's Hunger: The issue that application has chosen to examine is child hunger. We became interested in this issue by always seeing the commercials on television advertising child hunger and how we could help provide food for children who do not have access to food. Child hunger affects approximately seventeen million children, that works out to about one in every five children go hungry at some point during the year.

Can include delivery status interface and include an alert box on delete function.

Hotels / Restaurants Owner's: This study was designed to explain current food waste practices, specifically from the perspective of the staff in hotel kitchens. A case study of the perceptions of the staff involved in the food waste chain in a hotel group in Gauteng was undertaken, using a quantitative approach. Initiatives such as specific training could assist the staff to better understand 'best food waste practice' in relation to such negotiated sustainability issues as "social, environmental and financial policies and procedures".

Articles: This article function examines the problem of world hunger and discusses potential solutions to it. It reflects on the debate about whether transgenic foods should be used, which is more of a social controversy than a scientific one. Sustainability is considered a key driver for innovation that can be used as a basis for assessing the problem of hunger in the world, and the question is inseparable from its ethical aspects. Such capabilities should be embedded in educational programmes, to establish guidelines that are incorporated into curricula as transversal orientations to be able to make sustainability a social reality.
